WHAT TO EXPECT IN YOUR OSTEOPATHIC APPOINTMENT

As the BSO is a training establishment your treatment will be carried out by senior students and supervised by tutors who are fully qualified osteopaths. We make every effort to ensure that patients see the same student osteopath, but it will sometimes be necessary for you to be seen by a different student osteopath and/or tutor.

Throughout the process the students and tutors responsible for your care will seek to involve you at each step, and will ask for your consent to proceed when necessary. As you are central to the process, please do not hesitate to ask any questions, and if you are unsure of anything don't be afraid to ask for clarification.

Consultation with a student/tutor of the same gender

If you would like to see a student or tutor of the same gender (sex) you should ask at reception when you make your appointment. You should also remind the reception team when you book in and tell your student osteopath. The BSO respects that certain patients may have a preference but this may not always be possible to accommodate with tutors, especially at short notice. If there is not a tutor of the same gender to examine you (if required) then you may need to return on another date, when one is.

Case history

Your student osteopath will take a full case history which will include your medical history and current general health along with your presenting complaint.

Patient examination

For the purpose of examination you will be asked to undress to your underwear if you are happy to. This allows the student osteopath to examine you globally and consider the relevance of different parts of the body to your presenting problem. Gowns are available if you would prefer to wear one. If you do not feel comfortable undressing then please let your student osteopath know.

As part of the examination, you may be asked to perform some movements and the student osteopath may then move different areas of your body to see how they are functioning. Depending on your individual case, additional tests may be performed such as taking your blood pressure or testing your reflexes.

Evaluation

Once the student osteopath has completed the examination and spoken with their tutor, they will then let you know what they think is causing the problem and discuss possible treatments with you. This will include the treatment options available and their effects, the type of treatment recommended and the aims of the treatment.

Occasionally patients need to be referred to their GP for further investigation or care and in this situation we are happy to write a letter as to why we feel this is necessary. This is normally only carried out with your permission.

Osteopathic treatment

There are many different techniques and treatment types that osteopaths can use and your student osteopath will discuss these with you. You may be advised with regards to exercises, diet, work posture etc, as is relevant to your case. If you have any concerns after your treatment please raise them at your next appointment or contact the BSO Clinic for further advice.

How we use the information that you share with us

We use the information you share with us to enable student osteopaths and their tutors to make effective decisions with you about your care. We also use your information in other ways. Please refer to the leaflet Confidentiality, Consent and the Use of Data available in reception for more information.

Questions or concerns

If at any stage of your consultation you have any concerns or questions, please discuss them with your student osteopath, who will be happy to provide further information.

We always hope that your visit to us will have been helpful. However, if for any reason you are unhappy about any aspect of your consultation, please speak with your student osteopath or the clinic reception team who can then advise accordingly.
